Asian Resource Center Building Project Update

The ARCSA Resource Center project is moving forward with strong momentum. We are currently in the design phase, and the ARCSA Board has met with our architectural team at Stantec several times to review the evolving design concepts and site plan. These collaborative discussions have helped refine our vision and ensure the project reflects both functionality and cultural purpose.

A key priority throughout this process has been incorporating feedback from our community. The ideas and suggestions gathered during our recent community input sessions have been thoughtfully integrated into the design. This ensures that the Center truly represents the needs, values, and aspirations of the diverse communities we serve.

As we continue working with Stantec to finalize the design, our next major step will be to issue a Request for Proposal (RFP) to contractors and initiate the selection process. This will help us obtain accurate cost estimates and implement effective cost-control measures as we move toward construction.

We look forward to sharing additional updates as the project progresses and appreciate your continued support for this transformative community project.
